

I do not think Indiana's telephone privacy law should be weakened. I have established relationships with my bank and if it is urgent pertaining to my current accounts they have contact information, however, I do not wish to be solicited for new services. If I feel as if I am in need of additional services I will decide when and if I should contact my bank to discuss potential options. I do not need my bank or any other bank for that matter contacting me. Indiana has done a wonderful job at protecting the privacy of the State's residents and in today's day and age, each day it becomes more difficult to maintain your privacy. By lessening the law, you will simply open the doors for other organizations and we will be right back at the starting blocks. Thank you.
